MILK ORDINANCES PASSED BY BOARD

After Strenuous Fight They Are Pushed Through by One Vote to the Good — Feeble Kick From Dairymen.

"We have given the dairymen an opportunity to be heard several times, and not a one of them has been able to find any fault with the ordinance. I cannot understand why intelligent men object to an ordinance of this kind, for it is weak compared to those in force in other cities. I find from inquiry that most of the dairymen here are already observing the requirements of the ordinance, and no honest dairymen would object to it."

Thus did Supervisor Logan throw down the gauntlet to the several milk dealers who appeared before the Board of Supervisors last night to register a kick. And that kick was a false alarm, for one of them sought to find a "joker" in the milk ordinance which would put the "poor" milk man out of business.

"Why—if you pass that ordinance, we will have to build milk houses," exclaimed this frightened gentleman.

"Where does it say in this ordinance that you will have to build milk houses?" asked Logan quickly. "Oh, it's there all right, for Watson told us so," piped up the milk man.

"It says nothing of the kind. It tells what kind of milk houses you must keep up, if you have them, but you say you have none, so it does not apply to you."

Then the "small" dairymen said that the ordinance regulations were objectionable.

Supervisor McClellan objected to the ordinance, saying they had too much detail to them. He said that he had talked to D. P. R. Isenberg in San Francisco, who told him that he could comply easily with the regulations, but the small man would have a hard time of it. McClellan said he favored an ordinance, but one free from so many details.

Cox objected to the ordinance on the ground that the regulations could not be carried out without great expense to the county and city. He said he believed that the laws passed should be enforced, or what was the use of having laws?

"If it would take twenty inspectors to each dairy to enforce those regulations," said Mr. Cox.

Supervisor Kane voiced the sentiments of Mr. Cox and McClellan, saying that the provisions of the ordinance were such that they could not be carried out, and that he would not vote for them.

"What's the use of making all these kicks now?" said Mr. Quinn. "We need a milk ordinance, and we have to have one. We have amendments there, and can make more. I am going to vote for the ordinance, and we can fix up the amendments later."

Aylett, the father of the milk ordinance, arose to the occasion and said that it looked as if the ordinance were to be killed, so he might as well talk the matter over. He called attention to the fact that the printing of them alone had already cost $240, that a milk inspector had been appointed and that it meant a backward step and considerable loss to the city and county to kill off the bills. He urged its passage with such amendments as might be satisfactory to the small dairymen.

And so they voted—four in favor of the ordinance, Logan, Aylett, Ahia and Quinn—three against them, McClellan, Kane and Cox.

The results will be that dairymen who have been watering their milk must water no more; milk dealers who have come to the door slovenly and dirty must wear white coats and caps; they must keep their cows, barns and outbuildings in first-class hygienic condition. Ordinances No. 12 and 13 will soon become laws, and Honolulu will forge ahead another notch in her race to catch up with her sister cities.

TROOK--MACKAYE

The prettiest home wedding of last week, was the marriage of Mr. David Loring Mac Kaye, and Miss Annie V. Trook of Los Angeles. The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. Alfred Finley Thayer, city editor of the Bulletin. Mr. Mac Kaye was the grandson of Steele Mac Kaye, the famous playwright and author, whose master piece was Hazel Kirk. This gifted young man who was formerly a member of the Los Angeles Times and has recently identified himself with the Bulletin, comes from a long line of literary folk. Percy Mac Kaye the famous playwright of New York, who ranks with Balzac and Frohman is a first cousin. The Episcopal rites, which made the young couple man and wife was performed by Bishop Renwick at seven o'clock. The house had been tastefully decorated for the occasion. The petite bride who is of the brunette type, made a picture in her wedding gown of white silk heavily trimmed in lace, carrying a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Mrs. Alfred Finley Thayer the matron of honor, looked charming in a filmy gown of white. Mr. Thayer acted as bestman. After the ceremony the wedding supper was served on the lanai, which was a bower of pink and green. The table was decorated in the same color; beautiful candelabra with dainty pink silk shades lent an added charm to the scene. At eleven o'clock the young couple were escorted to Mr. Thayer's automobile which was elaborately decorated in pink carnations and mums. The young couple motored to their new home at Waikiki, where the honeymoon will be spent.

Street Excavation Ordinance Is Amended — Fee Reduced to Meet Emergencies—Carter Says It Is Hold-Up Game.

"Fifty cents a hole."
"And do you mean an inspector will have to walk twenty miles for 50 cents?" asked Mayor Fern, when the amended street excavation ordinance was sprung last night.

"Oh, not so bad as that," replied Quinn.

"Well, it's nearly that far to Kalaanui beach," responded his Honor. "Not so far—not so far, your Honor. It might be a hardship now and then but not often. I believe it is a good ordinance, and should be passed," said Quinn.

Deputy County Attorney Milverton suggested that the fee attached to permits taken out by people or corporations to dig up the streets of the city, should be reduced to 50 cents for each permit. The specifications for excavation were changed to read that a permit should be secured for every 500 feet of digging done. As there will probably be test cases made of the ordinance, Milverton felt that the fee and regulations should be placed in such figures which would not appear prohibitive.

Supervisor Aylett thought $1 per hole was cheap enough, and he favored protecting the interests of the city to the fullest extent. However, the amendments appealed to the Board and it was passed in that form.

The Mutual Telephone Company gets the hardest blow from the ordinance, and ex-Governor Carter said that it would delay the installation of the new automatic telephone system at least six months, as the company would make a test case of the matter in the courts. He considers the ordinance a "hold-up" and does not believe the Supervisors know what its effect will be on the business interests of the city and county.

CHEMICAL IN DRY SHAMPOO KILLS WOMAN.

Employees in a London Barber Shop Now Face the Charge of Manslaughter—Shampoo Was Good for Business.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The remarkable fatality which occurred recently in the hair-dressing department at Harrold's stores was the subject of charges of manslaughter brought at the Westminster Police Court yesterday against William Henry Eardley, manager of the department, and Beatrice Clarke, one of the assistants.

While Miss Helenora Dalrymple was undergoing a dry shampoo with carbon tetrachloride at the stores she became unwell and collapsed. She died before a doctor arrived.

It was stated at the inquest that she suffered from slight disease of the heart and from status lymphaticus, a condition which increases the likelihood of sudden death. The jury returned a verdict of "accidental death, accelerated by the fumes of tetrachloride of carbon," and added that "the firm was not justified in employing unskilled operators to perform this dangerous operation."

Professor Pepper, who is advising those responsible for this prosecution, and Dr. Chalkley, an eminent anaesthetist, visited the stores and were allowed to witness the operation of a dry shampoo performed in the hair-dressing saloon, which is large and well ventilated.

The saloon is divided into a number of cubicles, each intended for the use of a separate customer. For all ordinary purposes the cubicles are quite well ventilated, but for the purpose now under investigation the ventilation is of little use.

The customer, who sat facing a window, was operated in by an assistant, who held a basin at the back of the head to catch the fluid in which the hair was washed. About half a pint of this highly volatile fluid was used, and half a crown was charged for the process, as against 18 pence for an ordinary shampoo.

This shampoo was good for business, and no doubt customers liked it. But for its dangerous character there is no reason why it should not be used.

There was an electric fan in each cubicle, so that a forced draught of air could be directed toward the customer's head, fulfilling the double purpose of drying the hair and dissipating the fumes from the fluid.

It was stated at the inquest by Bradley that this carbon tetrachloride had been used at the stores for six years; that 20,000 or 30,000 customers had been treated by the process, and that, although cases of faintness had occurred, no serious injury had resulted.

Announcement was made at Philadelphia today by Samuel M. Clement, Jr., an attorney, that the Kentucky Rapid Transit Company, with a capital of $10,000,000, was chartered at Dover, Del. The principal operations of the company at present, it is stated, will be Louisville, Lexington and Frankfort, Ky.
